BANGOR, THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1889.

SPEECH

· CHARLES-N A X LOR, ON THE SUBTREASURY BILL

ост 13, 1837.

Sir, it is the glory of the Northern institutions that they give to every man, poor and rich, high and low, the same fair play. They place the honours, emoluments and distinctions, of the country before him and say 'go run your race for the prize, the reward shall encircle the brow of the most worthy." Thus it is that every one feels and knows that he has a clear field before him, and that with industry, prudence, and perseverance, he can command access in any honorable undertaking. He knows that his industry is his pion, his efforts are his own, and that every blow he strikes, whilst it redounds to his own immediate advantage, contributes also to the gued of the community, and the glory and re-nown of his country. All honorable employments are open to him. The fields of legislation are open to him, the bar is open to him, the fields of science are before him, there is no barrier between hun and the object of his ambition, but such as indus ry and perseverance may

Look at the workings of their institutions up on the appearance of the North. Look at her mighty cities, her forests of masts, her smiling villages, her fertile-fields, her productive mines, her numerous charities, her ten thousand im provements Behold my own, my native State Pennsylvania is intellectualized under their auspices Her soil, and hills, and valleys, and rocks, and everlasting mountains, live and breath under the animating influence of her intelligent and hard working population every stream of her rocky mountains are driven assunder, the bowels of the earth yeald forth their taeasures, and the face of the earth blooms and blossoms phrase, and then go home and tell our constituand fructifies like a paradise. And all this, all this, is the result of the intelligence, industry bidding and enterprize, of Northen labourers, tostered by the genual influence of their institutions

Nor see their efforts confined to their own country alone. Their industry and enterprise compass the whole earth. There is not a wave peder heaven that their keels have not parted. not a breeze ever stirred to which they have not unfurled the starry banner of their country. Go to the frozen ocean of the North and you will find them there; to the ocean in the extreme South and you will find them there Nature has ne difficulty that they have not evercome the world no limit that they have not attained. -

In every department of mind do the institutions of the North exert a wholesome, a developing influence. Sir, it was but a few days since that you saw the members of this house gathered round the electro magnetic mach ne of Mr Devenport. There they stood, mute and motionless; beholding, for the first time, the coret, sublime, and mysterious principles of na ture applied to inechinics, and there was the machine, visible to all eyes moving with the rapidity of lightning, without any apparent cause. But the genius that made the application of this sublime and invsterious influence who is he but a labouring, hard working black muth of the North?

wir, where do learning, liferature and science flourish but in the North? Where does the press teem with the products of mind but in the North? Where are the scientific institutions, the immense libraries, rivalling almost at this early day, Europe s vast accumulations, but in the North. And who, sir, gives form and grace and life and proportion to the shapeless marble, but the sculptor of the North. Yes, sir, and there too does the genius of the period contribute her ations to the stock of Northern To Northern handwork are you indebted for the magnificence of this mighty Capitol And those noble historical pieces now filling the panels of the Rotunda, which display the beginming, progress, and consummation, of your revolution, and give to all posterity the living forms and breathing countenances of the fathers of your republic, they, too, are the works of a Northern artist!

But, before I conclude this branch of my sub ject, let me make one observation that I had almost lergotten. The gentleman sceme to think that our workmen must of necessity be the passive instruments of our capitalists. His idea of the power and influence of wealth, controlling the very destines of the men who labours, must be derived from the institutions of his own genereirs Bouth; where he frankly avows that the capitalist does absolutely own the labourers. His views are, however, utterly inapplicable to the North. Who are the Northern capitalists of today, but the pennylers apprentices of yesterday? Esr, in the North there is scarcely a cia-s of men-easting exchainely as capitalists. The character of capitalist and labourer is there united in the same person. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, he who is a capitalist has become an by his own industry and perseverance. He begins as an humble "labourer" his industry, vilue and integrity, his only capital. He grad-ually accumulates. Every day of toil increases his means. His means are then united to his labour and he receives the just and honest profits of them both. Thus he goes on joining his accompletions with his labour receiving the profits of his capital and his toil, scattering the fruits of his efforts abroad for the benefit of society, hving in manfy tedependence and laying up a strek of a....fort and onjoyment for his declining yesis. Much was the rich Guard, the "mershamt and menner," as he styles hims if in his boy. And the are the capitalists all over the North. They were all laborations sings; and the hundre op-rative of to-day are a and will be the wealthy capitalist in gome few years to come; and _star are the matitutions of the North from retarding his advance, that they

No, sir, of May let that attack come from what quarter it may 1. The exwill be ever prompt to offer my feeble resistance and interpose my voice in their just vindication I now beg leave, Mr Chairman, to make a few remarks more immediately connected with the bill under consideration. By the madness and folly of her rulers, our country has been precipitated to a crisis. We have been convened here to meet that crisis. That is, the people and this house have been so informed. But Lave we met it? Are we meeting it? No, sir, we have been called here to do what this house has been doing for the fast six years, to echo the 20th at an advance of ad will and further the wishes of the Executive, to carry out the recommendations of the Presi dent's Mersage, to cease to be the fire representatives of the people, and to become the pli ant instruments of power. Nothing is to be introduced to our deliberations but what the President has recommended. Petitions are presented, and they are trampled under foot; plans of relief are suggested, and they are laid on the table. The people demand through you, through their representatives, a fair and impartial -liearing, and you meet them with that gag. of despotism the previous question when we ask why is all this "we are impudent-Iv to d that we must attend to the relat of the Government, that we have nothing to do with the people, that the President has submitted his foods its cumul, every oction of sountry has its plans, and that right or wrong we must sustain rail-road, distance is annihilated, the fluty ribs them that he has chalked out to us the line of our Legislative duties, and that we must follow

> Sir, it is by conduct like this that our country has been precipitated from the height of prosperity into the very depths of distress. This house is responsible for much of the evil under which the people are now groaning. Their Representatives in Congress have been faithless to them. They have striendered up their independence and become the mere echo of the President's will instead of treely-deliberating and choosing what was best for the people and the country, they have been watching the everchanging countenance of the Executive, and ascertaining what were his wisher and determinations— and thus have they been slavishly echoing and re-echoing that will until the great fundamental interests of the country have been entirely sacrificed. The people have been lost sight of, those who were their servants have become their masters. I ask every candid man whether the legislation of Congress has not, for many years, conformed in every important par ticular to the commands of the Executive-Whether the recommendations of the administration have not been the law of the land? Let us revert to the history of the past and see what are the lessons that it teaches

Large majorities of Congress passed an act or the recharter of the Bink of the United States. The democratic Legislature of my own State, Pennsylvania, unnormously recommend ed it. It was vetted by the President. And what did Congress do? Whip, sir, changed their opinion echoed that veto? Yes, we saw the very man who drafted and advocated the bill for re-chartering the Bank, (Mr. Dallas.) presiding at a Town Mocting a few weeks after ward., and there opposing the very measure. We will employ him as often as our chunney of which he was the author and father, sye, make foul the scaffold; Lesage never knew comfort in pecaniary matters, Spencer died in want, of which he was the author and father, sye, gets foul [Prentice turning at the beck of the President, like Sa turn of old, to destroy his own off-pring. the Executive But again Congress in Astigated the situation of the Bank of the United States, for the purpose of ascertaining whether it still continned to be a safe depositary of the public meneys. They found its situation to be sound and wholesome, and declared, by a large_majority, that the deposites be continued in it, according to law . The President, however, a short time afterwards determined otherwise, ordered the Secretary of the Treasury to lay violent hands upon the treasures of the nation, and take them from the place where Congress and the law declared they should be, and scatter them abroad over the land, by depositing them with the pet Banks; there to be used for the purpose of swelling the deluge of paper money and of feeding, pampering and bloating, the

He conceived, and planned, and put in operation a project which, according to his proining, was to banish Bank rage from the community, give us the best of our reneics, and fill-up the channels of circulation with gold. This was the sole work of the Executive and his agents. Congress had nothing to do with it. He submitted his plan, however, to Congs. se, in the form of a law, for their an proval. STATE IMPROVEMENTS Although our Tory Schators refused to give such a new impulse as the exigencies of the ulnes require to the continuance of the very important road to the Arosstock, the Executive has deemed it necessary, in accordance with previously existing statutes, to prosecute the great work of opening and exploring that fertile portion of the state Our engagements with Massachusetts, if noth ing eler, shouldely require that we should remove the barriers that lock up her wealth as well as ours. Massachusetts gains nothing but money to her Treasury, we gain besides that, a large, industrious and virtuous population, it & men, "thet sensitute a State" We-regard the present plans of the Land Office, as indicated by its advertisement last week, and the commission given to Dr Holmes to explore the Aroustook country, as among the most important measures adupted since the Esparation. These things look as though we had men at the head of affairs, who are determined to make Maine what she might to be Not men who are always ready with "time and nimney" for the interests of their party, and who do nothing for the profil and honor of the State, but real States men, who understand its expectles, who look at the diversified interests of the people, and make it their chief business to promote those interests. T will be recollected that more than two years sing, the Trustees of this Institution conmenced, through their agent, to solicit benefitetions in its behalf; with the view as then made known, lat, to furnish the community, at a moderate expense, facilities of a thorough, systematic, and well balanced education. 2d. to provide a Seminary for teachers of common schools, and 3d, to excite a coore general and deeper interest in favor of female education.

Of the result of their efforts the public are also to some extent, informed. The Board have now in their employment seven TRAGBERS, four gentlemen and three ladies, all of whom are ex-perienced in their profession. They have provided, in the erection of a large and commodious brick edifice for a female Academy and Boarding House, accommudations for one bundred pupils, at an expense of about $15,000.

-Connected with the institution is now, a somewhat extensive Philosophical and Chemical apparatus; also a small library and a cabinet of minerals. For the year ending August '37, the whole number of students was two hundred and sixty-five. For the current year the proportiouate number is much larger.

Provision is made for giving instruction, hereafter, with special regard to Civil Engineering, Practical Mathematics, &c. Mr. Robert Douglass is appointed to superintend this department and will give to it his entire attention. Mr. D. has devoted several years to these studies, and comes to us very highly recommended.

The branches of study pursued in the Highest Teacher's department_of this Institution, with the exception of Ancient Languages, are substantially what are taught in the colleges of

Also, occasional hints and observations on the kindred arts, and matters of taste and general litera-ture, with appropriate Poetical effusions. Fach number will-likewise contain more or less sucred or secular music, arranged with appropriate accom-Daniments.

The inhabitants of New England may well be denominated a musical people. And it is thought that a periodical of the above description, if well conducted, would meet with at least a competent support. It is agreed on all hands, we believe, that attention to the art of music was never so great in our country, as at the present day; yet we shall not pretend that science or taste keeps page with the practice:

A writer in a respectable Journal recently observed, "Our City takes the lead of all others in the Union, both in devotion to Music, and in the Instilutions for its perpetuation and improvement." this be an acknowledged truth, we deem it areircumstance no little favorable to our design.

It is well known that in Boston Music engages the special attention of both the old and young; and it has been thought proper to introduce it, as a suita-tile-branch of education, into some of our public schools, as well as many private seminaries. Sure ly, then, there is a reosonante expectation that our plan may succeed, and a helief that it could never have commenced more approximally
